

An inter Anglican chaplaincies cooperation keeps sailors warm.

10th May 2018

How it all started... During the course of his posting with us, our previous priest, Fr David Greenwood, had been in contact with a member of the Midi Pyrénées and Aude Anglican Chaplaincy. This person was looking for a way to distribute woolly hats, knitted by some members of that congregation, to sailors.

This is why a member of our group of All Saints' volunteers at Marseille Seamens' Club has received over the last few months no fewer than 3 boxes full of multi coloured woolly hats. These were duly passed on to the sailors of cargo ships when we visit them on board their ships.

Last but not least...

A further consignment of woolly hats was received in person when All Saints' Synod representatives met the priest in charge of the Midi Pyrénées and Aude Chaplaincy accompanied by some of his team at the recent Synod of Saint Jacut-de-la-Mer.
